

Wallabies v Fiji

with Port Bus to McDonald Jones Stadium

Sunday 6th July 2025

The Wallabies will host Fiji in Newcastle on Sunday July 6 in what will be their only hit out before the highly anticipated three-Test series against the British & Irish Lions. It will be the first time the Flying Fijians have played in Australia since 2017, with the teams having last met in the 2023 Rugby World Cup in France. The men in gold will return to McDonald Jones Stadium for what is just their third ever Test in the Hunter Region, having last played there against Argentina in a COVID-19 affected 2020 international season. Australia and Fiji have met on 23 occasions in the Test arena, with the Wallabies holding a 19-3 winning record and one draw.
